

Like the arrival of robins, the blossoms of this strawberry plant had served as harbingers of Spring. Out of season for it, in late September, the plant blossomed, adding a bright white radiance to the reds, oranges, and yellows of the Autumn leaves dancing to the ground down around it.

September Strawberry

for courage to stay in your heart and face the challenge of doing new things

To have a sensitive heart and to follow a high path that differs from the norm is indeed often painful and sometimes even dangerous.
We live in a time of packaging and marketing of uniform products and public image.
It is easy to feel lost, frightened, or abandoned when our own beliefs are questioned in this context and challenged by the status quo in all its forms and packages.

Our connection to our own inner knowing,
our positive connection with the Light and Life Force,
is not a tangible thing.
And if it is truly in a state of balance,
it must flow and change
and carry us to many new vistas and oceans of possibilities.

If we stand on the pedestal of knowing we must also know that we will not be there long, as we will soon be swept away to new challenges with both valleys and vistas.
Such is the place where we are.
This Earth is a schooling for the soul.....
a place to temper, hone, and be blessed.

This September Strawberry
blesses the heart and gives it courage.
It is for those who are here to do new things.....
to strengthen their knowing when they are challenged.
It encourages a deeper grounding..... a clearer understanding of who they are.....
and connects them to a network of fellow light workers.
It helps them to stay strong when they are confronted..... to know that their defense will be provided and that their job is to maintain their grounding,
to stay in their heart,
and to speak their truth clearly without apology.
